But it's not just gameplay powered by real data. Other elements of FIFA 22 are unique to the HyperMotion engine, including the CPU AI pathfinding that makes players smarter and smarter as they play more matches against real human opponents, delivering unbeatable and more realistic dribbling, off-the-ball movement and decision-making. Player attributes and muscle memory are key components of this new Dynamic Opponent System, which also increases the number of shots, balls, dribbles and energy-consuming actions players make in full motion – all calibrated to deliver a more authentic experience. There are two levels of opponent intelligence: Challenge and Skill. Challenge opponents are programmed to play more aggressively when more skilled opposition is on the pitch, while Skill opponents will play more defensively when facing a challenging opponent. In the Skill mode, the player is allowed to be the director of play to a certain extent, and is given some real-time control over aspects of the game, such as the pitch dimensions, to level the playing field when AI and player attributes are a match. Additionally, new reactions to the player, such as the “Fingers-Up” sign showing when an attacker has the ball around the penalty area, or a “Ten yarder” for when an attacker almost breaks free from an opponent’s tackle, will provide more context when determining when to press the attack. The full new features in FIFA 22 are listed below: New Dynamic Opponent System: AI will be aware of the opposition’s tactics and will adjust accordingly – be it high defensive lines, a defensive midfielder tracking the ball all the way back to the defense or a central striker screening the centre-backs. Opposition players will now react to the player’s actions, play more intuitively and react more quickly than ever before. Smart AI: CPU-controlled opponents will be better at pressing the ball, moving out of the back and making the right decisions and passing/shooting in the right moment. CPU AI will also be more accurate when making 1v1 tackles, dribbling and ball control, tracking the ball more accurately and anticipating dribbling moves, tracking, directional ball control and is faster at reacting to changes in the game as opposed to reacting immediately to the player’s actions. Off-the-ball AI: CPU AI will be more real players, integrating card collecting and gameplay synergies into one unique experience. New gameplay elements have also been added to FUT: the ability to manage a squad from 3v3 matches, including the use of formations; the “Mascot Power Gauge”; and the ability to earn badges by scoring highly in FUT matches. New 2018 World Cup Mode Get ready to experience the 2018 FIFA World Cup™ like never before in FIFA 22. FIFA World Cup is an all-new way to play the FIFA World Cup™ experience. The experience will include iconic stadiums, national team kits, and completely new graphics. Gamers are able to play in new championship modes with a solo or 2v2 co-op experience, as well as in the new Solo and 4v4 modes. Additional interactive aspects will create an engaging experience to match the 2018 FIFA World Cup™ itself. New Ball Physics Engine Using new camera technology from EA SPORTS FIFA, players will feel a more authentic experience by impacting the ball in real-world situations. Players will now be able to control the flight of the ball and tackle with more confidence. Players will also be able to make accurate and dynamic passes with the ball by using new “ball control” technology. Physical Player Animation For the first time, EA SPORTS FIFA will implement physical player animation, which means players run differently than before, delivering more realistic movement and action. Additionally, players will now move in a more natural fashion. The new physics engine will give players the power to control the physics of the ball.
