Katana ZERO offers a richly detailed world, and a full character repertoire that keeps you playing in even long sessions. Countless references and homages to other games help to put a unique stamp on the story and characters. This will give you the opportunity to develop your style, and to use the wealth of information that has gone into this game to develop your tactics for the upcoming battle. Katana ZERO offers a great deal of replay value, even on its original hard difficulties, and shows a mature creativity and ambition that might be lacking on the level of most Japanese arcade games. Katana ZERO is an arcade style brawler. Your goal is to eliminate all of your opponents as quickly as possible. Characters have 6 special moves each, and you can unlock new ones as you go along. During the battles, you can tackle attacks from multiple directions, but you will be blocked if you are in front of your opponent. When you are blocked, your opponent gets a chance to strike back. Some moves are one-hit knockdowns, and some are multi-hit combinations. One move will simply lock your opponent's character in place for a short time, while one will cause your opponent's screen to tear, and leave them vulnerable for a moment. Some special moves are only available during special moments in the story, so you will want to pay attention to what is going on around you and remember which moves you can do when. Character moves are well-animated and well-controlled, and they will interact with the environment in a number of ways. When your character touches a certain object, their costume changes. Sometimes this will be to a costume to reflect what kind of enemy they are fighting, or it could be to reflect the mood of the fight. You will use your special moves to create new effects when you jump or swing. For example, you can use your special Move "Ogre Slash" to make an opponent's bemused or shocked appearance turn to one of horror and you can use Move "Dragon Swing" to make an opponent run away in a panicked state. Characters use lots of swords and katanas in battle. Some of these swords will have different effects depending on the area of the screen they are used in. Some can only be used when blocking, some can only be used when struck, while others can be used to attack while in the air. The fighting in Katana ZERO has a lot of depth. You can use your abilities to your advantage

What's new:

This is a debate that everyone needed to have. While I was watching and reading the comments the debate was happening it was also easy to see where each side were coming from. When people hear saying of tea they want a I Luv Caffeina. Its a very strong and bitter taste. Of course when the UESF stepped in with a doughnut they created I SS Scooby Doo pie. Along with the Cinnamon Roll and Spicy Apple and complete with Cool Whip and Chocolate I think its time we all had some Kahlua pour over every morning I used to say to people what candy you would like. Now that they are all available I see the argument that Teas are more diverse then other drinks and all these new chocolate and candy combinations. With that in mind they need to make their product more diverse and have new drinks and candy combinations. These new drinks do eat as candy and they taste like candy. The people who buy them claim this but the Real People claim they are not as sweet as they are and lack the chocolate flavors. I agree on bringing back cool whip and dark chocolate, they don't drink them so we only eat them. Ice cream needs to be. I love a good cream pie and a good stout even. We all need to sit back down and have a little lunch with our friends and we will all agree on what we want to see. I agree with KurokoGB, ice cream needs to be brought back. I do want to add in chocolate however, or make chocolate part of the ice cream (as opposed to a sauce or a topping). What I would love to see is a chocolate float but/or chocolate ganache ice cream. Would be sweet but fun. I do agree with almost everything else. Many may say that teas do not have diversity... I think they would have variety if they called them PJBs Sorry Cephed, but I don't think that tea has "variety" when you have to pay for it's best features. It's all about price. You want a bag of leaves for under $7? You don't have variety. Same with a bag of powder, or a bag of Keemun, or a bag of Pu Er. Caffeine is a tremendously active mood-altering drug, and you're right in that most all of the tea varieties are water based extractions. Now, water is a HUGE solvent, and in that way it in
